2025 Strictly Functional Pottery National Exhibition

Mark Hewitt

Having spent a lifetime looking at all types of pots, from fine china to studio pottery, from art ware to sanitary ware, I’ve gained a level of connoisseurship that recognizes quality in many forms. The functional pots submitted for the Strictly Functional Pottery National 2025 reflect an equally broad range of origins and ideas. It’s been a delight to see so many interests so thoroughly explored. Quality was the benchmark and there was plenty of it.

What I was looking for was a keen knowledge and love of materiality, an understanding of historic ceramic excellence, consummate craftsmanship, and the flair of inspiration and innovation. I found them all. Well done, everyone!

Although I was honored to be asked to be the juror for SFPN, I wasn’t looking forward to the process of selecting work for the show. Likewise, I’ve never enjoyed selecting apprentices if more than one person applies at the same time, as I must turn someone away. It’s hard to say no.

However, a task was entrusted to me, and I’ve made my choices.

We take a risk when we follow our passion for making useful pots, and it’s only through repeated failures that we learn. For those who didn’t make it into the show, keep looking, keep learning, keep practicing, which is exactly what I tell myself and ask of all who are in the show.

May our delight in making functional pots never end!

Mark Hewitt

We are excited to have Mark Hewitt jury the thirty-third annual SFPN. He selected 159 pieces from 153 artists for this year’s exhibition. We believe this is another wonderful show with something for everyone to enjoy and appreciate.

Amy Burk

Kevin Lehman

Born in Stoke-on-Trent, England, Mark is the son and grandson of directors of Spode, the fine china manufacturers. As a student at Bristol University in the early 1970’s, Mark read Bernard Leach’s “A Potter’s Book,” and decided to become a studio potter rather than an industrial manager. This decision led to a three-year apprenticeship with Michael Cardew, and later another with Todd Piker in Connecticut, where Mark met his wife, Carol.

In 1983 they moved to Pittsboro, NC and set up their pottery. Mark built a very large wood kiln and began making the distinctive functional pots for which he is known, specializing in very large planters and jars, along with finely made smaller items. He uses local clays and blends the different North Carolinian folk traditions together into a contemporary style that has attracted a sizeable following.

Mark’s work has been featured in numerous publications including the Smithsonian magazine, the cover of American Craft magazine, and he has written extensively in the ceramic press. Mark has exhibited in London, New York and Tokyo, as well as throughout the US. He is well-represented in museum and private collections.

Janet K. Burner - Tucson, AZ

We thank all the many volunteers and organizations that help with making this show a reality, and we thank all the applicants who have been faithfully applying for years and the new potters who took the chance this year to apply. And, as always, thank you to the patrons that keep coming in to view and support this wonderful exhibition.

Enjoy the show!
